greasy, slimy, orange slug slowly crawling along speeding through the magical enchanted forest with the pesky small buzzing fairies in the towering trees

I'm in the magical enchanted forest with trees as large as a sky-scrapers darkening the woods with long black shadows like long cloaks on the magical forest turf, puck was racing through the forest like the bloodhound with wings ripping the ferns in through the wide green ferns covering the forest floor like a nice green fluffy cosy dorey. Puck was heading to some long tall of creamy flowers glistening with a funny strange faint glow round the edges of the odd flower. "I wonder if they're the ones Oberon was talking about" exclaimed Puck and then it came to him that these were the flowers ~~was~~ the mighty, noble Oberon was talking about. He puck picked up the magical flower ~~was~~ suddenly raced off again in the opposite direction ~~was~~ however as he was tearing through the woods he tripped over a long large brown log.

Wow & Zaugh! What a powerful story starter! ☺

I used good adverbs

I think I put the speech marks in the wrong place
